The challenge of managing osteomyelitis requires multidisciplinary team approach that consists of as well as the healthcare professionals including Orthopedic Team, Infection Disease Specialist, nursing Team and others. It is important to understand the process of disease, blood parameters, investigations, treatments and medications including the psychological support. The main objectives of nursing role is to provide information and educate to patients and caregivers, tackling and helping to solve patient's problems, to support and carry out of treatment as patient had gone through the hospitalization.

The focus care on controlling infection and providing treatment may results in good prognosis mostly in acute osteomyelitis.
